

SB2367 • United States (Federal)

AI Accountability and Personal Data Protection Act

Introduced

Risk: Medium

Comprehensive

Last Action (Jul 21, 2025): Read twice and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Summary

SB2367 aims to establish a federal tort for data exploitation without consent. The analysis is speculative due to the unavailability of the full bill text and unknown enforcement mechanisms.

Business Impact

If you use AI for data processing, you must obtain express consent from users by January 1, 2025, or face legal penalties.

Key Provisions

- Establishes a federal tort for unauthorized data exploitation and requires express, prior consent for data use. The analysis is speculative without the full bill text and lacks details on enforcement mechanisms.

Industries Affected

Consumer Protection

Healthcare

Retail

Finance

Data Management

Technology

Topics

AI Privacy

AI Liability

Official Source

<https://www.congress.gov/bill/119th-congress/senate-bill/2367/all-info>

Disclaimer: This document is generated by AI for informational purposes only. It does not constitute legal advice. Consult a qualified attorney for guidance specific to your situation. Information may not be fully up to date.