

H8012 • Rhode Island

Creates the RI Pedestrian Safety Act allows cities and town to use automated safety monitoring which a civil fine of $50 for violations.

Introduced

Risk: Low

Narrow/Targeted

Last Action (Mar 24, 2026): Committee recommended measure be held for further study

Summary

The RI Pedestrian Safety Act authorizes cities and towns in Rhode Island to use automated safety monitoring systems, imposing a $50 civil fine for speeding and red-light violations.

Business Impact

If you operate in Rhode Island, you must comply with automated safety monitoring regulations by [date] or face a $50 fine for violations.

Key Provisions

- Authorization for cities and towns to use automated safety monitoring systems
- Imposition of a $50 civil fine for speeding and red-light violations detected by these systems

Industries Affected

Municipal Government

Traffic Management

Transportation

Topics

Autonomous Vehicles

Related Bills

- S2751 (RI)

Official Source

<https://status.rilegislature.gov/>

Disclaimer: This document is generated by AI for informational purposes only. It does not constitute legal advice. Consult a qualified attorney for guidance specific to your situation. Information may not be fully up to date.